TEACHING

Healthcare Innovation and Entrepreneurship, Rice University.

Experiential learning, year-long team-based course with mixed teams of clinicians, engineering and MBA students, following the Stanford BioDesign curriculum. Teams identify clinical needs, design medical device and digital health solutions, and produce a commercialization and business plan for fundraising.

Energy and Healthcare Entrepreneurship Labs (MBA), Rice University Jones Graduate School of Business.

Experiential learning course that places MBA students in 2-day-a-week, 14 week internships at startups in the energy and healthcare sectors, respectively.

E-Lab (MBA), Rice University Jones Graduate School of Business.

Experiential learning course that mentors MBA students through process of working on their own startup companies.

Entrepreneurial Strategy (undergraduate and MBA), Rice University.

Case-based course on entrepreneurial strategy.

New Enterprises, Rice University

First course in MBA entrepreneurship sequence: customer discovery, customer validation, design thinking.

Entrepreneurial Finance and Private Equity (MBA), Booth School of Business, University of Chicago.

MBA level course focused on the financing of new ventures.

Cases in Venture Investment and Management / Advanced Topics in Venture Investing (MBA), Kellogg School of Management, Northwestern University.

Cross-disciplinary MBA level case-based course focused on evaluation of venture investment opportunities from the perspective of the investor. Self-authored cases on current and former VC deals are utilized to examine the process by which VCs evaluate and manage their portfolio company investments, with participation by the VCs who originally sourced and evaluated the deals. Cases cover early through late stages. All major management considerations (strategy, marketing, finance, human resources and organizational behavior) are covered in the case evaluations.

Entrepreneurial Finance and Venture Capital (Executive MBA, MBA), Kellogg School of Management, Northwestern University.

Executive MBA level course focused on the financing of new ventures, with particular emphasis on the venture capital industry and investment process.

Entrepreneurial Finance (MBA), MIT Sloan School of Management.

MBA level course focused on the financing of new ventures and private technology companies, with particular focus on the venture capital industry and fundraising/investment process.

Entrepreneurial Financing (Executive Education), MIT Sloan School of Management

Module on financing options and term sheets for high growth startup companies. Part of the Sloan School's Entrepreneurship Development Program.

Venture Capital (Masters of Finance), The University of Hong Kong

Graduate level course covering the building blocks of the venture capital and leveraged buyout industries. Emphasis on fundraising, financial contracts, valuation, terminology and organizational structure.

Venture Lab (MBA), Kellogg School of Management, Northwestern University.

Experiential learning course that places MBA and EMBA students in 2-day-a-week, 10 week internships at venture capital funds, accelerators and incubators, and VC-backed startup companies. Created course.

Venture Capital and Private Equity Investing (MBA), Kellogg School of Management, Northwestern University.

MBA level course covering the building blocks of the venture capital and leveraged buyout industries. Emphasis on fundraising, financial contracts, valuation, terminology and organizational structure.

Case Studies in Venture Capital Investment and Management (MBA), Johnson School of Management, Cornell University.

MBA level case-based course focused on evaluation of new venture investment opportunities from the perspective of the investor and entrepreneur. Cases on current and former VC deals are utilized to examine the process by which VCs evaluate and manage their portfolio company investments, with participation of the involved VCs and entrepreneurs.

Venture Capital and Entrepreneurial Finance (MBA), Johnson School of Management, Cornell University.

MBA level course covering the building blocks of the venture capital industry. Emphasis on fundraising, financial contracts, valuation, terminology and organizational structure.
