

This course challenges you to explore the differences between management and leadership. Through the utilization of a psychometrically sound assessment, you will become clear about your own essentials of leadership and characteristics – when they work to your advantage and disadvantage. With access to research, case studies, dynamic discussion and group activity, you will return to work with an enhanced ability to engage your teams, inspire your peers and influence your leaders. Position yourself to gain increasing leadership communication, roles and responsibilities through this business leadership program.
